

Feeling Valued

“When a person is regularly treated with respect and belief in their potential, the continual reminder that they are seen as worthy of respect can be a crucial step for them in beginning to value themselves, a first step toward beginning to imagine new possibilities.”

